

Lincoln started riding as a hobby at a young age in Hong Kong at the Hong Kong Jockey Club, that continued into his university years and his early business career.

Lincoln was transferred in his work to and had lived in Tokyo, Japan for 10 years, and went on further to work in Singapore from 2006. Resuming his riding as a hobby in Singapore, he rides at least 3 times a week, and has now on lease a private horse at the Bukit Timah Saddle Club.

Lincoln holds a senior position in a Japanese multi-national shipping company, responsible for business processes and computer systems. Lincoln speaks and writes English, Japanese, Chinese, and besides being a UK passport holder, he is also a permanent resident of Japan and Hong Kong.
